

Stichting Amyloïdose Nederland is the Dutch patient organisation that advocates for patients and their families and loved ones suffering from amyloidosis.

Amyloïdose Nederland does that through:

- giving information about the disease to all affected and professionals;
- organising meetings for patients and their loved ones;
- organising presentations by professionals for patients and their loved ones;
- present valid information on our website;
- give information through social media;
- being involved in scientific research;
- being part of the network of patient organisations worldwide.

The board consists of volunteers, mostly patients themselves.

The medical advisory board consists of highly specialised doctors who have a leading role in the Dutch and international amyloidosis community.
